

SPED ON COUPLES SPOONING IN PARK WITH FLASHLIGHT

"Peeping Tom" Using Electrical Equipment Caught in Brooklyn After Fight.

POLICEMAN TRAPS HIM.

Gives the Name of Henry Grambell and Is Held in $500 Bail.

Roaming couples who, during intervals between dances that are held almost nightly in what is known as the "Farmhouse" in Prospect Park, steal out into the dark to see and tell in the moonlight that what is in and about the moonlight, may feel a certain sympathy now, for the man who has been shining an electric light upon them is known to the police.

He is particularly well known to Police Officer Walter S. Sargent of the Prospect Park police station. Sargent is not a bit pleased with the manner in which he was introduced to the "peeping Tom" as this class of couples persons is called by the police. Sargent's uniform is badly worn and tattered, and the nail on his left finger is missing as a result of a fight which he had with the light shiner.

HELD IN $500 BAIL BY MAGISTRATE REYNOLDS.

The man who is credited with the responsibility for spying on the love-making couples is Henry Grambell, who had the police his address was No. 20 West Fourteenth street, Manhattan. Grambell, Reynolds of the Flatbush Police Court, after hearing Sargent's story to-day, held Grambell in $500 bail for examination on a charge of assault on the third degree.

Complaints had been coming in so frequently from residents of Flatbush who patronize the "Farmhouse" that Sargent decided on Thursday to look up the man who was responsible for the annoying practice. He took up a bush behind a tree and waited for the light shiner to come out of the house.

At two dark within the place. The shining lens of a nickel-plated electric flashlight next appeared in the hole, and in another moment his rays shot out over the lawn in search of prey.

SHINY BEAMS ON COUPLE HOLDING HANDS.

At another instant it was beaming upon a couple clinging upon a bench. The light shiner then turned toward the house and saw a pair of eyes appear in an opening just above the light.

The spying couple seemed not to notice the light, and they made bold for a time. Sargent, not unacquainted with the secrecy which lovers crave, thought it was time to do something. He picked out a strip of lawn as the most noiseless path and sneaked upon the shelter house.

Sargent, thought that when he opened the door it would distract the "peeper." But not a bit of it. He found Grambell with eyes glued to the opera glasses while in his other hand he held the light. The policeman caught Grambell by the shoulders and tried to throw him to the floor. Grambell, who is powerfully built, grappled with the policeman. The two rolled out of the shelter house into a gravelled path leading to the edge of a precipice on what is known as Sullivan Heights—the scene of a part of the battle of Long Island. They wrestled for some time and were approaching the precipice when Sargent took out his nightstick and began beating Grambell.

PEPPER GIVES POLICEMAN A HARD FIGHT.

The peeper rained blow after blow upon the policeman's face, but Sargent finally struck him across the back of the neck with his nightstick and the peeper fell. In two or three minutes Grambell was back fighting and as Sargent was adjusting his handkerchief about the man's wrist the peeper sunk his teeth into the policeman's right hand and gave him a severe bite. He made another attempt to bite the officer and this time succeeded in tearing Sargent's finger nail.

Some of the dancers who heard the scuffle and Sargent's appeal for assistance rushed to the scene in time to see Grambell fall by the officer's blow. They called Ambulance Surgeon Keith of the Methodist Episcopal Hospital who found that both men needed attention.

At the police station Grambell refused to discuss his arrest and would give the police no information other than his name and address.

NO, ADELE RITCHIE DIDN'T GET MARRIED ON THE 13TH AFTER ALL

Decided She'd Be on the Safe Side by Having Knot Tied Day Before.

Miss Adele Ritchie, the actress, was not married to-day, Friday, the 11th of June, 1915, to Charles Nelson Bell of New York City. She was married to him yesterday in Stamford by Justice of the Peace Closs. The pair were accompanied by the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles Boyd. They are now touring through the Berkshire in an automobile.

The news of the intention of Miss Ritchie to marry to-day was made public in Stamford a week ago by Jay Williams, her guest. He appeared in an agitated state before the public officials in Stamford to ask for police protection. Miss Ritchie had told him, Williams said, that if he remained on the place until last Friday evening Mr. Bell, whom she was to marry to-day, would separate him from the land of the living. Miss Ritchie explained, when asked about the danger to the groom's life, that he had been away and she had disheveled him, whereupon he became more angry. She had warned him that when her fiancé arrived and heard how he had been treated he would likely be one less tiller of the soil in Stamford.

Miss Ritchie said she had selected today for the wedding to show her contempt for traditional hoodlums. She conferred to Justice of the Peace Closs that the more she thought about the less contempt she felt, and that she had just run over to be married right away lest she be tempted to take the chance she had at first so bravely dared.

25,000 BABIES DIED IN YEAR.

This Was in New York and Gov. Sulzer Says Half Might Have Been Saved.

ALBANY, June 12.—More than 25,000 babies less than a year old died in New York State during the year 1913. These statistics, Gov. Sulzer declared, in addressing an infant welfare conference to-day, "are an indictment against our civilization," inasmuch as "well known authorities estimate that at least half of these deaths were preventable by known practical methods."

Other speakers were State Health Commissioner Porter, Dr. H. L. K. Shaw of Albany, Dr. Lindsay R. Williams of New York, Dr. Francis R. Cronin of Buffalo and Dr. Florence M. Leighton of the Russell Sage Foundation.

WILSON WILL SEE CANAL BEFORE WATER FILLS IT.

Col. Goethals to Postpone Operation That President May View Construction Work.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—President Wilson will go to Cornish, N. H., on June 22 to install his family in the "Wormer White House." He will stay at Cornish over the Fourth, returning to Washington July 4, but does not expect to take his vacation until late in September or early October. He is not sure he is going to get a vacation at all.

The President told Col. George W. Goethals that he hoped to be able to visit the Panama Canal before water was turned into the "ditch," which Goethals said he intended doing on or about Oct. 1. He told the President that if then the President was not ready to go to Panama he would defer turning in the water for a couple of weeks in order that the President might see the canal in its construction state. The engineer assured the President that the slides which have bothered the workmen for three years would not retard the opening of the canal.

BRAZILIANS SEE ANNAPOLIS.

Minister Muller and His Party Guests of Naval Man.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Dr. Lauru Muller, Brazilian Minister of Foreign Affairs, and his party were entertained to-day by being taken to Annapolis to inspect the naval academy, where a special drill in their honor, a luncheon, hydroaeroplane flights and inspection of the buildings was arranged for them.

It was said by one of the members of the party that Brazil was thinking of adding some hydroaeroplanes to her military equipment. Lieut. De Fozzosa, son of President Penezes of Brazil, and Dr. Muller's son, another member of the party, expressed their desire to make flights if opportunity is offered them. To-night Secretary Garrison gave a dinner in honor of the distinguished visitors.

$15 SAKS SUITS for Youths and plenty of them

Wherever you may buy your clothes, young man, don't make the mistake of buying men's clothes in reduced sizes. Your clothes should be tailored for you in the first place, and not just reduced for your accommodation. Saks clothes for the young man are cut and tailored by an organization which makes young men's clothes exclusively and none other. That is why you can always find in a Saks suit, for instance, that snap and that virility of line which are the expression of youth itself.

Next, you do not need to pay more than fifteen dollars to get suit satisfaction, provided you come to Saks'. We specialize in youthful suits at this price. We have suits all the way from $15.50 to $25, of course, but $15 is our pet figure. What we cannot do for you at that price, simply cannot be done at all. Our fifteen dollar selections are just rife with variety. There are blue serges, worsteds, chevrons, homespuns, blue and gray pencil stripes, fancy mixtures, shepherd checks and over plaids. The models are style itself—snug-fitting English coats, with roll collar and trim sleeves, that are full of individuality and the joy of being young. And we will promise you the best fit you ever had. Sizes 30 to 36. Ages 14 to 20.

Women's LONG SILK GLOVES at 85c regularly $1.25 per pair

These are 16-button length, made of heavy Milanese silk, Mousquetaire effect with two clasps at wrist. The fingers are double tipped for greater serviceability and Paris point embroidery adorns the backs. The assortment embraces black, white, tan, navy, gray and pongee. A lustrous and very rich looking glove such as you cannot get outside of Milanese silk, and a value such as you cannot get anywhere but at Saks'.

WHITE OSTRICH Trimmed Hats $5 that should sell for $8.50

History repeats itself. Last week we advertised ostrich trimmed hats at this price, and they sold so readily that we have elected to duplicate the event tomorrow. We have improved the assortment, however, with the addition of newer shapes and a still greater diversity of designs. They are made of fine quality white tagal hemp, covered with French crepe over the crown, and a white ostrich band and plume reaching upward from the back or at the side at varying angles. There are mushrooms, pokes and roll brim sailors in both small and large effects, and, aside from the consideration of cost, these hats are undeniably pretty, which is, after all, the chief factor in making a choice.

New Trimmed Black Hats at $7.50—value $11.50

At this special price we are subscribing to the popularity of the black hat with maline effects over satin, and box pleated effects of fine mesh net, both trimmed with attractive bows of satin ribbon. Medium size shapes.

Saks' Blue Serges for Men and Young Men

at $17.50, $20, $23 & $25

There are two kinds of blue serges in the world of clothes—blue serges and serges with the blues.

There are Saks serges that are a radiant blue for the tailoring they get—and serges that are blue for the need of it.

Now, it is true that all clothing shops carry blue serges, but it is also true that you cannot get style from the dye vat.

We have no monopoly on blue serges, but we have something akin to that when it comes to the question of style.

We have rescued blue serge from the commonplace and completed its education with a post-graduate course in style.

A Saks' Blue Serge, like any blue serge, is only a blue serge to begin with, but by the time we get through with it, it is the incarnation of style and distinction.

Nothing could be better in tailoring than these blue serges at $17.50 to $25.00, with their soft roll lapels and close-fitting, put-your-arms-around-me lines.

Slenderly fashioned, they are neatness personified; and, quarter or half lined, they are as cool as the blue serge itself.
